I am a producer and director with fifteen years of experience working on long and short form documentary series for various digital platforms. With each new project, I tackle all the creative and logistical problems that may arise, collaborating with talent, crew, EP's, management, and outside contributors to find exciting ways to build better productions and tell innovative and compelling stories. I am highly detailed, organized and I always keep my calm because you never know challenges a new production may throw at us. By approaching each project as an opportunity, I dedicate myself to creating new and unforgettable narratives and visuals that connect audiences to the stories we want to tell.
